

Leah West

Leah West is an SJD Candidate at the University of Toronto Faculty of Law where she studies state responses to terrorism and online counterterrorism efforts. She is also currently co-authoring the 2nd edition of National Security Law, with Craig Forcese. Leah was formerly Counsel with the National Security Advisory and Litigation Group of the Department of Justice, and served as the Judicial Law Clerk to the Honourable Justice Richard Mosley of the Federal Court of Canada.

Before attending law school, Leah served as an Armoured Officer in the Canadian Armed Forces, and while deployed to Afghanistan in 2010 she developed Canada's Female Engagement Strategy. She is a graduate of the Royal Military College, holds advanced degrees in law and intelligence, and in 2017 was the inaugural recipient of the CDA Institute's Nichola Goddard "Game Changer" Award.
