

Christophe Rugambwa

Research Assistant in Defence Economics & Procurement

Christophe Rugambwa is currently a student at the University of Ottawa pursuing a Master of Arts degree in Economics. He obtained his Bachelor of Science in Economics from George Mason University in 2018. Prior to joining the CDA Institute, Christophe worked as a Project Associate at Centennial Group International, a strategy and policy advisory firm based in Washington, D.C. He has also served as a Market Research Associate for the Virginia Small Business Development Center and supported Small and Medium Enterprises in their efforts to expand into new international markets. In this role, he also worked closely with the Council of State Governments and co-authored a report that developed a set of metrics to be used in evaluating U.S. State International Trade Programs. He fluently speaks Kinyarwanda, English and French and has intermediate knowledge of Spanish and Swahili.
