

Defence and Industrial Base Cooperation Amongst Allies

KEVIN P. HENDERSON

Vice President for Growth

Global Defense & Security Solutions (GDSS), Arcfield

Kevin Henderson serves as the vice president of growth for Arcfield's Global Defense and Security Solutions sector, where he is responsible for business development and strategy for U.S. and international segments of the defense market. This includes aligning and optimizing the growth objectives across the enterprise with a focus on cybersecurity, cross-domain solutions, hypersonics test and evaluation, and fleet ballistic missiles programs in the United States, as well as avionics maintenance, propulsion systems, and supply chain management for Canada's CF-18 fighter fleet.

Prior to joining Arcfield, Kevin was the chief growth officer at SOSi; the largest family-owned and operated technology and services integrator in the aerospace, defense and government services industry, with a focus on providing support to the Departments of Defense and State, as well as the U.S. Intelligence Community (IC). Before his time at SOSi, Kevin was formerly a vice president at BAE Systems Inc., where he led growth for their IC services business. He has two decades of relevant experience in business development, corporate strategy, and profit and loss management across defense and intelligence markets.

Preceding his business career, Henderson served as a U.S. Army Infantry Officer. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from the Virginia Military Institute in 1999, and is an alumni of the Global Executive Leadership Program at Yale School of Management.