THE HONORABLE JOHN CONGER

Director Emeritus

The Center for Climate and Security

John Conger is Director Emeritus of the Center for Climate and Security, Senior Advisor to the Council on Strategic Risks, Senior Advisor to the International Military Council on Climate and Security, President of Conger Strategies and Solutions, and a Senior Advisor at WestExec Advisors. Across these roles, Mr. Conger advises policymakers and organizations on climate security, energy security, defense infrastructure, resilience, and federal policy.

Formerly, Mr. Conger served in senior positions at the Department of Defense, including Principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), with responsibility for development and oversight of the DoD budget, and Acting Assistant Secretary of Defense (Energy, Installations and Environment). In the latter role, Mr. Conger led DoD climate security efforts and oversaw a portfolio spanning energy security, environmental remediation and management of nearly a trillion dollars in defense real property across more than 500 installations.

Previously, Mr. Conger spent more than a decade on Capitol Hill in personal office and committee staff roles focused on national security, international affairs, and appropriations.

He holds a B.S. and an M.S. in Aeronautics and Astronautics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an M.A. in Science, Technology and Public Policy from the George Washington University.
