DR. GRAZIA (GRACE) SCOPPIO

Professor Emerita in Defence Studies

Royal Military College of Canada

Grazia (Grace) Scoppio, PhD is Professor Emerita in Defence Studies at the Royal Military College of Canada in Kingston, Ontario, Canada, cross-appointed at Queen's University Department of Political Studies and fellow at the Centre for International and Defence Policy at Queen's. She has held leadership positions, including: Acting Deputy Director Research, Dallaire Centre of Excellence for Peace and Security at the Canadian Defence Academy; and Dean of Continuing Studies at the Royal Military College of Canada after having served as Associate Dean. In 2018 she was a member of the first Halifax Peace with Women Fellowship Selection Committee for the Halifax International Security Forum. In 2021 she held a Fulbright Canada Research Chair in Peace and War Studies at Norwich University, Vermont, USA. She has over two decades of experience teaching and developing university-level courses, supervising graduate students and conducting international research related to military personnel including: indigenous participation in the military, immigrants in the armed forces, diversity and gender in military organizations, and military education. She presented at many national and international conferences and authored or co-authored several publications including books, reports, chapters in edited volumes and articles in peer-reviewed journals. Due to her expertise she is often contacted to provide contributions to the media and testify before Parliamentary committees. Dr. Scoppio sits on various committees including: the Adjudication Committee of the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada; the Editorial Boards of the bilingual journals Canadian Military Journal and Comparative and International Education Journal; and the Publications Review Panel of the Centre for International and Defence Policy at Queen's University.
