DR. MARION LAURENCE

Associate Professor

Department of Political Science, Dalhousie University

Marion Laurence is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at Dalhousie University and Acting Director of the Centre for the Study of Security and Development. Her research interests include global security governance, multilateral peace and stability operations, learning and change in international organizations, and evolving forms of security cooperation amid heightened strategic competition. Before taking up her current position, Dr. Laurence was an Assistant Professor in the Department of Defence Studies at the Canadian Forces College, where she taught in the National Security Programme and the Joint Command and Staff Programme. She has held research and teaching appointments at the University of Toronto, the University of Ottawa, Toronto Metropolitan University, and the Dallaire Centre of Excellence for Peace and Security within the Canadian Defence Academy. Her work has been supported by grants and fellowships from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the International Studies Association, Global Affairs Canada, and the Department of National Defence. She is the author of Intrusive Impartiality: Learning, Contestation, and Practice Change in United Nations Peace Operations (Oxford University Press, 2024), and co-author of Norms, Practices, and Social Change in Global Politics (Cambridge University Press, 2025). She holds a PhD in political science from the University of Toronto.
