JACOB TUCKEY

Practitioner

Strategic Analysis Network

Jacob Tuckey is an early-career policy professional affiliated with the Strategic Analysis Network, with a focus on international security and industrial strategy issues. He completed his master's degree at the University of Waterloo's Balsillie School, where his research focused on how flashpoints in the Russo-Ukrainian War spurred defence-industrial development on NATO's eastern flank.

Jacob has also served as a Balsillie Graduate Fellow studying economic resilience, as well as research lead for a policy task force at the NATO Association of Canada. Jacob's published works span defence-industrial development, trade weaponization, and electoral interference.
