SASHA MATHIEU

Master's Student in Strategic Studies

University of Calgary's Centre for Military, Security, and Strategic Studies

Sasha Mathieu is a Master's student in Strategic Studies at the University of Calgary's Centre for Military, Security and Strategic Studies. Her research focuses on critical undersea infrastructure, Arctic security, and transatlantic defence cooperation. She has held policy and analytical roles across the Government of Canada and currently serves as a Junior Fellow with Arctic360, where she supports communications and social media initiatives.

Her graduate research examines Canada's preparedness to protect critical undersea infrastructure, particularly in the Arctic, with a focus on the policy, governance, and operational challenges associated with strengthening national resilience. Prior to moving to Calgary, Sasha graduated at the top of her class as co-Valedictorian from the University of Ottawa, where she earned an Honours Bachelor's degree in International Studies and Modern Languages.
